

Today's Panel

Personal Philanthropy

focusing vision for effective giving

The object of today's workshop is to engage members and their guests by inspiring them to develop personal giving plans. Such plans may include focus on interest areas, collaborating with other members and organizations, and expanding resources.

Susan Mauk

Attorney and Licensed Professional Counselor, Mauk has spent her lifetime as a philanthropist—giving time and money. She finds the simplicity of collaborating with friends surprisingly effective.

Johanna Bell

Bell serves as vice president of Edward's Mother Earth Foundation, a family foundation that has developed a funding profile that focuses on energy efficiency policies in multiple states.

Susan Smith

President of IWCF, Smith has spent the past 10 years supporting the development and growth of the pooled grant model that is the heart of IWCF.

Mary K. Aucutt

Former City of Boise's Funding Information Specialist and Director of the Foundation Center for the Library in Boise, Aucutt has worked assisting foundations and philanthropists locate the information that helps to make key decisions and influence the future.

IWCF fosters educated philanthropy and seeks to explore all assets and needs of the community. Participation in this educational process is in no way an indication of IWCF grant support nor is it intended as a gesture of preference regarding our pooled grants process.
